

Management Division A Cross-Cutting Engineering Division

Serving Industry, Government and Academe

About MGTD

The Management Division cuts across all units and technical areas of ASME enhancing member professional development and skills, promoting professional practice and responsibility, developing and delivering technical training, and serving the organizational needs of ASME members.

Where We Are

Project and program management, technological innovation processes, motivation, communication, human resources, organization and planning, technology forecasting and assessment, entrepreneurship, product and market analysis and planning, sales engineering organizations, technology transfer, finance, economic development, management information systems, the application of computer programs and data bands, small business, management development and education, performance measurement, quality and productivity.

Just about anything you do and touch, MANAGEMENT is there!

What We Do

- Promote the art, science and practice of management
- Encourage and foster research, development and the publication of significant information in the field of management
- Foster the interchange of ideas
- Provide opportunities for education and training
- Stimulate interest in management
- Recognize outstanding achievements and contributions in the field of management

Who We Serve

YOU!

Contact US

The Management Division is a cross-cutting engineering organization of ASME where the Young Managers call it home. Are you interested in joining our Management Team?

Check us out

www.asme.org/divisions/management

